HORI1BA - Information

Learning outcomes

Provides first cycle training in Oriental studies, particularly in Oriental languages and civilizations in different areas :

- 1) Ancient Egypt and the Near East, including the biblical world;
- 2) Byzantium and the Christian Orient, including the Caucasus;
- 3) Arabic and Muslim worlds;
- 4) India and the Far East.

By the end of the Bachelor's degree course, students will have acquired the following skills in the field of their speciality :

- command of one or more ancient oriental languages;
- (optionally) command of one or more modern oriental languages;
- ability to undertake philological and literary analysis of oriental texts;
- knowledge of the history and society in a field of the Ancient Orient;
- knowledge of the culture and civilization in a field of the Ancient Orient;
- ability to research and gather academic information.

Teaching method

The bachelors programme in Bachelor in Ancient Languages and Literatures: Oriental Languages begins with a common semester made up of general courses given within the faculty. These general courses are taught by a team of teachers who emphasize an active exchange involving practical work and student participation. This common semester provides students with the opportunity to change to another bachelors programme at the end of the January exam session if the student's advisory office agrees.

From the second semester of the first year on, the courses specific to the students' bachelors programme use a variety of pedagogical methods (active learning, a balanced combination of individual and group work) with the aim of acquiring knowledge and the ability to analyse.

Throughout the student's bachelor programme in Bachelor in Modern Languages and Literatures: Oriental Languages, students experience a variety of teaching methods : lectures, group work, individual work, seminars. Some courses also use e-learning (exercises and resources are made available to students, pedagogical management, sharing and evaluation by the class of work).

Evaluation

Depending on the nature of the course and the teaching methods, the evaluation will take different forms. Some courses will involve oral and/or written evaluations (held during one of the three exam sessions: January – June – August/September), whilst the evaluation of seminars will involve more substantial student participation as well as assessment of individual course work. Evaluation methods will be explained at the beginning of each course.

Those exams relating to courses on communication skills will evaluate the student's level, i.e. the practical use of the language in relevant situations.

Teaching methods are evaluated in accordance with the current University regulations (see General regulations concerning examinations  ). Students may also find additional information regarding the evaluation of courses in the course description.
