Information

Learning outcomes

The minor in "History of Art and Archeology" aims to offer students of all disciplines a general introduction to art history and archeology. Free to choose, the student can either gain skills in critically analyzing information, handling sources, and in the large frameworks of reference of the main techniques (architecture, sculpture, painting, music,...), or an introduction to great civilizations and the artistic developments of different epochs (from the antiquity to the present day), or a mixture of these various aspects.

Teaching method

The courses make use of a variety of teaching techniques and strategies (lectures, group work, individual work, seminars, reading etc.) which help students to acquire the necessary skills. Certain courses also use e-learning techniques (provision of resources and exercises, teaching devices, collective sharing and assessment of work).

Evaluation

According to the type of course, there are different forms of assessment. Certain courses have traditional oral and/or written assessments (which take place in the examination periods in January, June and August/September), while seminars involve student participation throughout the semester and the assessment of individual work. Further details on the assessment method are given at the beginning of each course.

Course examinations on communication skills are designed to test performance, that is to say practical use of the language in meaningful situations, which demonstrate students' level of ability.

Teaching activities are assessed in accordance with the rules currently in force at the University (see General Examination Regulations). Students may also find additional information on the particular methods of assessment in the course descriptions.
