| Teacher(s) : | Bartiaux Françoise ; Marquet Jacques ; Servais Paul (coordinator) ; |
| Language : | Français |
| Place of the course | Louvain-la-Neuve |
| Main themes : | The topics covered in the course will make connections between current problems and those encountered in other parts of the world or in other social or cultural groups or perhaps even in other periods of time. The themes are linked with kinship, the formation and characteristic features of unions, types of domestic groups etc. Various cases are selected for analysis and may change from year to year. |
| Aims : | By the end of this course, students will be able to analyse a folder of documents relating to the family and/or sexuality by using concepts, methods and techniques from anthropology, history and/or sociology. They will be able to examine critically the information they find and identify where it may be biased. They will be able to identify the epistemological and methodological choices which have shaped it and draw lessons for its interpretation. They will be able to undertake intercultural comparisons, put material in a historical context and draw sociological interpretations. The contribution of this Teaching Unit to the development and command of the skills and learning outcomes of the programme(s) can be accessed at the end of this sheet, in the section entitled "Programmes/courses offering this Teaching Unit". |
| Content : | Methodology : the course makes connections between the anthropological perspective and historical and sociological approaches ; the extensions within these subjects are emphasized. Teaching methods : the course comprises both lectures and activities directly involving students. Distance learning tools are also used. |
| Other infos : | Prerequisites : the subject courses from the first year of the Master's degree Assessment : the methods of assessment will be explained by the lecturer(s) at the beginning of the course. Support : reading folder and students' notes References : a bibliography on each subject area is given to students at the beginning of the course |
