

2.5 credits

30.0 h

1q

Teacher(s) :	Luciani Didier ;
Language :	Français
Place of the course	Louvain-la-Neuve
Main themes :	In order to achieve this aim, the course will - above all take into account, in the historical development, the interactions between the Jewish world and Western society, both Christian and secular, without ignoring the presence of Jewish communities in the Middle East and Northern Africa - illustrate the contribution of Judaism to European civilization and thought .
Aims :	At the end, the student shall be able to show the diversity of currents in Jewish history and thought from the Middle Ages up to now, as well as their sources and specific contributions. The contribution of this Teaching Unit to the development and command of the skills and learning outcomes of the programme(s) can be accessed at the end of this sheet, in the section entitled "Programmes/courses offering this Teaching Unit".
Content :	2010-2011 Whether Judaism is taken from a historical, cultural, religious or political point of view, it still appears as a complex and plural reality. Rather than introducing Judaism as a singular entity, the course will try to give an account of its diversity in the course of history, in the life of communities, in the expression of its beliefs and in the variety of the scriptural hermeneutics upon which Judaism is founded. The question of Judaism vs Christianity will complete our approach.
Bibliography :	Please refer to the French version.
Other infos :	Ne prerequisite demanded. A syllabus is available.
Cycle and year of study :	> Master [120] in Anthropology > Master [120] in Political Sciences: International Relations > Master [120] in Sciences of Religions > Certificat universitaire en sciences des religions
Faculty or entity in charge:	TECO