Content :	The Byzantine state developed a particular form of organisation. During its eleven centuries of existence (330 A.D. to 1453 A.D), it underwent profound modifications, starting out with a system akin to the Roman empire to arrive at one typically medieval. It is this evolution which the course seeks to illustrate by a profound study of several themes, such as the administration of territories, and of finance, taxation etc. The study of source documents will enable the student to understand the daily functioning of the Byzantine state and to appreciate its characteristics and evolution.
Bibliography :	Textes et matériaux fournis par l'enseignant.
