Teacher(s) :
Language :	Français
Place of the course	Louvain-la-Neuve
Prerequisites :	LGLOR1651 and LGLOR1652 or a course deemed equivalent by the lecturer.
Main themes :	Mastery of Armenian and Georgian languages, and an introduction to the history of these two nations. Alternating with LGLOR2652A, this course deals with Armenian and Georgian texts which were either produced in one of these two languages, or were translated from Greek into Armenian and/or Georgian. Particular attention is also paid to the study of manuscripts, to palaeography and the techniques of edition of critical texts. Through the study and commentary of the selected texts, the language and culture of Armenia are also studied. Student who follow this course of 5 credits will choose between the Armenian part and the Georgian part of the total course LGLOR2651.
Aims :	At the end of this course, the student will be capable to read, translate and analyse ancient and medieval Armenian and Georgian texts of advanced difficulty. He will have mastered the various working tools, and will also be able to carry out a personal research on the texts and languages concerned. The contribution of this Teaching Unit to the development and command of the skills and learning outcomes of the programme(s) can be accessed at the end of this sheet, in the section entitled "Programmes/courses offering this Teaching Unit".
Evaluation methods :	Continuous evaluation with an oral exam at the end of the year: reading and translating a text already seen in the lectures with justification of grammar points and commentaries.
Teaching methods :	The lectures take the form of seminars: the texts that the student will have prepared are analysed during the course and grammatical, linguistic historical and cultural commentaries are added. The lecturer will on occasions, supply additional explanations on special points of history and literature. A recommended reading list is supplied.
Content :	The Armenian and Georgian languages belong to different linguistic families, but to cultural and religious words which are partially similar. The course aims to train the students in the linguistic specialities of these two languages and in their cultural universe by means of the study of original texts. Notions of grammar (morphology, syntax vocabulary and etymology) and the history of the language are studied in depth, and are comparisons established with other languages. This course is conceived as an introduction to research, and requires a certain amount of preparation by the student.
