Main themes	The course 'Bible et culture' aims at studying the influence of the bible on several expressions of visual arts, music and literature. During the academic year 2017-2018, the Old Testament book of Song of Songs (Canticles) and particularly its theme of divine/human love will be dealt with. Being a literary work of love poetry, this biblical book has given rise to very different interpretations, going from theological-allegorical into explicitly anthropological and even pure erotic readings. Undoubtedly, this plurality of interpretations finds its origin in the way the protagonists of the texts ' a boy and a girl ' have been interpreted: as allegory of God and Israel, of Jesus and the church, of the church and the virgin Mary, but equally as human characters of a young boy and his beloved girl.
