Teacher(s)	Vanasten Stéphanie ;
Language :	Dutch
Place of the course	Louvain-la-Neuve
Prerequisites	Level B2 of the Common Europea Framework of Reference for Languages The prerequisite(s) for this Teaching Unit (Unité d'enseignement – UE) for the programmes/courses that offer this Teaching Unit are specified at the end of this sheet.
Main themes	Reflection on the concept of "history of literature": analysis of its methodological and disciplinary foundations (especially Dutch literature); Presentation of the history of Dutch literature and contextualization bearing in mind the main cultural, philosophical, and political European productions; description of its periodization in the 19th and 20th centuries; synthesis of the major literary productions and confrontation with the analysis of individual movements. Compulsory readings of literary texts illustrate the course.
Aims	At the end of the course, students should be able to : - read and understand texts in Dutch, from the 19th and 20th century; - explain the main developments of Dutch literature from the 19th and 20th century and relate them to different contexts (linguistic, cultural, philosophical, aesthetic, ideological, social, political) as well as the European literary context; 1 - situate the major authors and literary texts on a timeline (periods, movements, generations) and show the distinctive features of the literary facts by means of the history of literary criticism (aesthetics, genres, themes, poetics, genetics, media, reception, institution etc.) ; - critically discuss the legitimacy and the validity of the periodization used and write (from a historical and cultural perspective) some brief personal comments (essay, dissertation) on a literary text (based on a related academic writing, for instance).  - - - - The contribution of this Teaching Unit to the development and command of the skills and learning outcomes of the programme(s) can be accessed at the end of this sheet, in the section entitled "Programmes/courses offering this Teaching Unit".
Evaluation methods	Continuous assessment (25%): active participation in the course, based on the compulsory preparatory reading of literary texts and learning materials and including the role of respondent. Two compulsory written tasks are expected (students will automatically get a failing mark for this part if assignments are not handed in). The final assessment consists of a written exam (50%) and an oral exam (25%). The written exam covers the historiographical contents and markings exposed and discussed during the course as well as the studied literary texts. (Extracts from) commented texts consists in an in-depth assessment. The oral exam is based on a personal written task, made beforehand, and consisting of the critical analysis, using three scholarly sources, of an unseen literary text related to the period studied. It will be established according to the principles of the scientific approach and will show a critical reflection on a problem related to historiographic construction as a scholarly approach in the broader context of Cultural history and the HHistory of Ideas. The quality of personal expression and the student's mastery of written and spoken Dutch are part of the assessment criteria. For students who have to resit the exam, the assessment is divided as follows: written exam (50%) and oral exam based on a new personal work (50%).
Teaching methods	The course introduces to the literary history of the Dutch-speaking world, using ex cathedra teaching and interactive learning activities (individual and collective research, reading and analytical tasks based on extracts of literary histories and critical readings ; inversed classrooms ; in-class discussions). Students are encouraged to actively participate in classroom (respondents). The course sessions focus on commented readings of literary texts in Dutch that are representative of the studied periode, and chosen in function of various themes, registers, genres, manifests. These (or other representative) texts, taken up in the anthology, are read and prepared at home by all students. Exercices and supervised tutorials (10 hours), under the supervision of a teaching assistant, are proposed in addition to the course and help the students to carry out critical text analyses, to deepen critical methods of analysis and to prepare for final exam. Special attention will be paid to the use of scholarly and heuristic tools in Dutch literary studies.
Content	This course is devoted to the study of major Dutch literary movements from 1800 until the second half of the 20th century. It constitutes a sequel to LGERM1334. It explores some movements and genres, major authors,
