UCLouvain

2018

IIsms2114

Entrepreneurship (CEMS)

5 credits

30.0 h

Q2

Teacher(s)	Hermans Julie ;Janssen Frank ;
Language :	English
Place of the course	Louvain-la-Neuve
Main themes	The importance of entrepreneurial ventures in Europe has been recognized since the 1980s. Moreover, recent changes in the European economy have created new opportunities for entrepreneurial initiatives. Entrepreneurs are today seen as the drivers of the market economy and their activities provide wealth, jobs and diversity of choice for consumers. However, most business school programs are still oriented towards existing and/or large traditional firms. The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the specificities of entrepreneurial ventures and to help them understand how these firms are created and managed.
Aims	Having regard to the LO of the programme X, this activity contributes to the development and acquisition of the following LO:
	<ul> <li>1. Corporate citizenship 1.1. 'Demonstrate independent reasoning, look critically ' 1.3. Decide and act responsibly ' 2. Knowledge and reasoning 2.1. Master the core knowledge of each area of management. 2.3. Articulate the acquired knowledge from different areas 2.4. Activate and apply the acquired knowledge '3. A scientific and systematif approach 3.1. Conduct a clear, structured, analytical reasoning ' 3.2. Collect, select and analyze relevant information ' 3.3.Consider problems using a systemic and holistic approach ' 3.4. Perceptively synthesize 'demonstrating a certain conceptual distance ' 3.5.Produce, through analysis and diagnosis, implementable solutions' 4. Innovation and entrepreneurship 4.1. Identify new opportunities, propose creative and useful ideas ' 4.3. ' collaborate and actively drive forward collective ac- tions for change' 5. Work effectively in an international and multicultural environment 5.1.Understand the inner workings of an organization ' 5.2.Position the functioning of an organization, in itssocio-economic dimensions' 5.3.Understand and establish their own role and scope for action ' 6. Teamwork and leadership 6.1. Work in a team 6.2. Exercise enlightened leadership skills' 7. Project management 7.1.Analyse a project within its environment and define the expected outcomes' 7.2. Organize, manage and control the process, ' 7.3.Make decisions and take responsibility for them in an uncertain world ' 8. Communication and interpersonal skills 8.1. Express a clear and structured message' 8.2. Interact and discuss effectively ' 8.3. Persuade and negotiate ' 9. Personal and professional development 9.1. Independent self-starter ' 9.2. Self-awareness and self-control ' 9.3. Self-motivation' 9.4. Quick study, lifelong learner '</li> </ul>
	At the end of this course, the student will be able to:
	<ul> <li>At the end of this course, the student is able to understand the importance of entrepreneurship for the European economy today At the end of this course, the student is able to understand the specificities of entrepreneurial ventures (economic, human, financial, legal, organisational, etc.) At the end of this course, the student has developed entrepreneurial skills (extra or intra-preneurial) At the end of this course, the student is able to manage a group project and to communicate and defend his/her point of view in front of an audience At the end of this course, the student is able to communicate to an audience At the end of this course, the student is able to work in teams.</li> </ul>
	The contribution of this Teaching Unit to the development and command of the skills and learning outcomes of the programme(s) can be accessed at the end of this sheet, in the section entitled "Programmes/courses offering this Teaching Unit".

per group. Those projects should address one or more infernationalization issues encounted by internation entrepreneums. Those rankel is sues will be exposed as submed willing the fix week of the teaching unit. Student will be asked to reclaim the issues as their own and turn it into an opportunity, to develop a plan of action to exploit the opportunity, and to test key hypotheses. The students are expected to deliver three outputs:           1. Continued evaluation: course participation, especially during the (mandatory) mid-course presentation of the projects Individually           Grade weighting: 40%           1. A final paper describing their international entrepreneurship project, as well as a critical report about the ner- entrepreneurial concepts and methods that have been applied in their project. To be sent one week before the oral exam To be done in group Grade weighting: 20%           Second session examination (August)           Preliminary memory: 20%           Second session examination (August)           Preliminary memory: to be allel to access the second session and validate the course credits, the students mun have participated in the confunde evaluation of the teaching unit, including the development of an international entrepreneurship project. In August, the students are expected to deliver two outputs:           1. A final paper about the further development of the individual papers where appropriate To be done in group (where appropriate - if only one student of the individual papers where appropriate To be done in group (where appropriate - if only one student of the individual papers where appropriate To be done in group (where appropriate - if only one student of the individual papers where appropriate and guest spatelers. This active project-bassed learning
Second session examination (August)           Preliminary remarks: to be able to access the second session and validate the course credits, the students must have participated in the continued evaluation of the teaching unit, including the development of an international entrepreneurship project. In August, the students are expected to deliver two outputs: <ol> <li>A final paper about the further development of the project, as well as a critical report about the additional concepts and methods applied in the project since the first session. To be sent one week before the oral exam</li> <li>To be done individually</li> <li>Grade weighting: 50%</li> <li>Oral presentation of the project in front of the jury – synthesis of the individual papers where appropriate To be done in group (where appropriate - if only one student of the group has a second session, this studer presents individually)</li> <li>Grade weighting: 50%</li> </ol> <li>Teaching methods</li> <li>In this course is based on an active project-based learning approach. It involves getting students (in teams) to develo a real-life project, which is nurtured by the learning of new concepts and methods from peers, the teacher, expert and quest speakers. This active pedagogy requires a constant and active presence in class.</li> <li>Content         <ol> <li>In this course, students will learn to deal with new business opportunities in an international setting. By developin a real-life international project, they will be able to identify the involved stakeholders, as well as determine the own role as entrepreneurs. As such, the course provides students with for anoten to a now require or even inside established organizations. As such, a the opportunities is to a truto and the project are created and managed, especially in an international setting. Is organized arout as initiatintw</li></ol></li>	Evaluation methods	First session Examination (June)         This course will be assessed through an entrepreneurial project undertaken by teams of students (max 4 students per group). Those projects should address one or more internationalization issues encountered by international entrepreneurs. Those real-life issues will be exposed to students during the first week of the teaching unit. Students will be asked to reclaim the issues as their own and turn it into an opportunity, to develop a plan of action to exploit the opportunity, and to test key hypotheses.         The students are expected to deliver three outputs:         1. Continued evaluation: course participation, especially during the (mandatory) mid-course presentation of the projects Individually         Grade weighting: 40%         1. A final paper describing their international entrepreneurship project, as well as a critical report about the new entrepreneurial concepts and methods that have been applied in their project.         To be sent one week before the oral exam         To be done in group         Grade weighting: 40%         1. Oral presentation of the project in front of the jury, which includes international entrepreneurs         To be done in group
Second session examination (August)           Preliminary remarks: to be able to access the second session and validate the course credits, the students must have participated in the continued evaluation of the teaching unit, including the development of an international entrepreneurship project. In August, the students are expected to deliver two outputs: <ol> <li>A final paper about the further development of the project, as well as a critical report about the additional concepts and methods applied in the project since the first session. To be sent one week before the oral exam</li> <li>To be done individually</li> <li>Grade weighting: 50%</li> <li>Oral presentation of the project in front of the jury – synthesis of the individual papers where appropriate To be done in group (where appropriate - if only one student of the group has a second session, this studer presents individually)</li> <li>Grade weighting: 50%</li> </ol> <li>Teaching methods</li> <li>In this course is based on an active project-based learning approach. It involves getting students (in teams) to develo a real-life project, which is nurtured by the learning of new concepts and methods from peers, the teacher, expert and quest speakers. This active pedagogy requires a constant and active presence in class.</li> <li>Content         <ol> <li>In this course, students will learn to deal with new business opportunities in an international setting. By developin a real-life international project, they will be able to identify the involved stakeholders, as well as determine the own role as entrepreneurs. As such, the course provides students with for anoten to a now require or even inside established organizations. As such, a the opportunities is to a truto and the project are created and managed, especially in an international setting. Is organized arout as initiatintw</li></ol></li>		Grade weighting: 20%
Preliminary remarks: to be able to access the second session and validate the course credits, the students mushave participated in the continued evaluation of the teaching unit, including the development of an international entrepreneurship project.In August, the students are expected to deliver two outputs:1. A final paper about the further development of the project, as well as a critical report about the additions concepts and methods applied in the project since the first session. To be some one week before the oral exam To be done individually Grade weighting: 50%1. Oral presentation of the project in front of the jury – synthesis of the individual papers where appropriate To be done in group (where appropriate - if only one student of the group has a second session, this student presents individually) Grade weighting: 50%Teaching methodsThis course is based on an active project-based learning approach. It involves getting students (in teams) to develo a real-life project, which is nurtured by the learning of new concepts and methods from peers, the teacher, expert and guest speakers. This active pedagogy requires a constant and active presence in class.ContentIn this course, students will learn to deal with new business opportunities in an international setting. By developin a real-life international project, they will be able to identify the involved stakeholders, as well as determine the own role as entrepreneurs. As such, the course provides students with the opportunity to bear to mail, Entrepreneurs has initiative taking and realime (the able) of entrepreneurs in the form of a new venture or even inside established organizations. As such, the entrepreneurship is about the detection and exploitation of here business opportunities is a critical new intermational orporation. Entrepreneurship is about the detection and exploitation of
1. A final paper about the further development of the project, as well as a critical report about the addition concepts and methods applied in the project since the first session. To be sent one week before the oral exam To be done individually Grade weighting: 50%1. Oral presentation of the project in front of the jury – synthesis of the individual papers where appropriate To be done in group (where appropriate - if only one student of the group has a second session, this studer presents individually) Grade weighting: 50%Teaching methodsThis course is based on an active project-based learning approach. It involves getting students (in teams) to develo a real-life infermational project, they will be able to identify the involved stakeholders, as well as determine the own role as entrepreneurs. As such, the course provides students will earn to deal with new business opportunities in an international setting. By developin a real-life international project, they will be able to identify the involved stakeholders, as well as determine the own role as entrepreneurs. As such, the course provides students with the opportunity to develop entrepreneuri competences such as initiative taking and resilience (the ability to bounce back from failure and to learn from it). Entrepreneurship is about the detection and exploitation of new business opportunities, is to turn ideas into actio in the form of a new venture or even inside established organizations. As such, entrepreneurship is about the detection and exploitation of new business opportunities is to turn indeas into action is organized around four main topics: - Basics of (International Perpreneurship): - Basics of (International Perpreneurship): - Business Planning for international opportunities.Inline resourcesInformations on MoodleFaculty or entity inCLS		Preliminary remarks: to be able to access the second session and validate the course credits, the students must have participated in the continued evaluation of the teaching unit, including the development of an international entrepreneurship project.
concepts and methods applied in the project since the first session. To be sent one week before the oral exam To be done individually Grade weighting: 50%1. Oral presentation of the project in front of the jury – synthesis of the individual papers where appropriate To be done in group (where appropriate - if only one student of the group has a second session, this student presents individually) Grade weighting: 50%Teaching methodsThis course is based on an active project-based learning approach. It involves getting students (in teams) to develo a real-life project, which is nutrured by the learning of new concepts and methods from peers, the teacher, expert and guest speakers. This active pedagogy requires a constant and active presence in class.ContentIn this course, students will learn to deal with new business opportunities in an international setting. By developin a real-life international project, they will be able to identify the involved stakeholders, as well as determine the own role as entrepreneurs. As such, the course provides students with the opportunity to develop entrepreneuric competences such as initiative taking and resilience (the ability to bounce back from failure and to learn from it). Entrepreneurship is about the detection and exploitation of new business opportunities, i.e. to turn ideas into actio in the form of a new venture or even inside established organizations. As such, therepreneurship is now recognize as a driver of economic growth worldwide. Furthermore, globalization trends have created new international opportunities to be selzed by entrepreneurship; Basics of (International) Entrepreneurship; Basics of (International) Entrepreneurship; Basics of International entrepreneurship; Basics of International entrepreneurship; Business Planning for international opportunities.Inline resources <td< td=""><td></td><td></td></td<>
To be done in group (where appropriate - if only one student of the group has a second session, this studer presents individually) Grade weighting: 50%Teaching methodsThis course is based on an active project-based learning approach. It involves getting students (in teams) to develo a real-life project, which is nutrured by the learning of new concepts and methods from peers, the teacher, expert and guest speakers. This active pedagogy requires a constant and active presence in class.ContentIn this course, students will learn to deal with new business opportunities in an international setting. By developin a real-life international project, they will be able to identify the involved stakeholders, as well as determine the own role as entrepreneurs. As such, the course provides students with the opportunity to develop entrepreneuri competences such as initiative taking and resilience (the ability to bounce back from failure and to learn from it). Entrepreneurship is about the detection and exploitation of new business opportunities, i.e. to turn ideas into active opportunities to be seized by entrepreneurs. The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the specificities of the entrepreneurial process and to hel the understand how entrepreneurship; Basics of (International) Entrepreneurship; Basics of (International) Entrepreneurship; Business Planning for international opportunities.Inline resourcesInformations on MoodleEaculty or entity inCLSM		To be sent one week before the oral exam To be done individually
Total might notifieda real-life project, which is nurtured by the learning of new concepts and methods from peers, the teacher, expert and guest speakers. This active pedagogy requires a constant and active presence in class.ContentIn this course, students will learn to deal with new business opportunities in an international setting. By developin a real-life international project, they will be able to identify the involved stakeholders, as well as determine the own role as entrepreneurs. As such, the course provides students with the opportunity to develop entrepreneuri 		To be done in group (where appropriate - if only one student of the group has a second session, this student presents individually)
<ul> <li>a real-life international project, they will be able to identify the involved stakeholders, as well as determine the own role as entrepreneurs. As such, the course provides students with the opportunity to develop entrepreneuric competences such as initiative taking and resilience (the ability to bounce back from failure and to learn from it). Entrepreneurship is about the detection and exploitation of new business opportunities, i.e. to turn ideas into actio in the form of a new venture or even inside established organizations. As such, entrepreneurship is now recognize as a driver of economic growth worldwide. Furthermore, globalization trends have created new international opportunities to be seized by entrepreneurs. The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the specificities of the entrepreneurial process and to hel them understand how entrepreneurial projects are created and managed, especially in an international setting. is organized around four main topics:</li></ul>	Teaching methods	This course is based on an active project-based learning approach. It involves getting students (in teams) to develop a real-life project, which is nurtured by the learning of new concepts and methods from peers, the teacher, experts and guest speakers. This active pedagogy requires a constant and active presence in class.
In the form of a new venture or even inside established organizations. As such, entrepreneurship is now recognize as a driver of economic growth worldwide. Furthermore, globalization trends have created new international opportunities to be seized by entrepreneurs. The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the specificities of the entrepreneurial process and to hel them understand how entrepreneurial projects are created and managed, especially in an international setting. is organized around four main topics: - Basics of (International) Entrepreneurship; - Entrepreneurial methods (Lean StartUp, Effectuation) - Ecosystems for international entrepreneurship; - Business Planning for international opportunities.Inline resourcesInformations on MoodleFaculty or entity inCLSM	Content	In this course, students will learn to deal with new business opportunities in an international setting. By developing a real-life international project, they will be able to identify the involved stakeholders, as well as determine their own role as entrepreneurs. As such, the course provides students with the opportunity to develop entrepreneurial competences such as initiative taking and resilience (the ability to bounce back from failure and to learn from it).
them understand how entrepreneurial projects are created and managed, especially in an international setting. is organized around four main topics: - Basics of (International) Entrepreneurship; - Entrepreneurial methods (Lean StartUp, Effectuation) - Ecosystems for international entrepreneurship; - Business Planning for international opportunities.Inline resourcesInformations on MoodleFaculty or entity inCLSM
- Entrepreneurial methods (Lean StartUp, Effectuation)         - Ecosystems for international entrepreneurship;         - Business Planning for international opportunities.         Inline resources       Informations on Moodle         Faculty or entity in       CLSM
- Ecosystems for international entrepreneurship;       - Business Planning for international opportunities.       Inline resources     Informations on Moodle       Faculty or entity in     CLSM		- Basics of (International) Entrepreneurship;
- Business Planning for international opportunities.       Inline resources     Informations on Moodle       Faculty or entity in     CLSM		- Entrepreneurial methods (Lean StartUp, Effectuation)
Inline resources     Informations on Moodle       Faculty or entity in     CLSM		- Ecosystems for international entrepreneurship;
Faculty or entity in CLSM		- Business Planning for international opportunities.
	Inline resources	Informations on Moodle
	Faculty or entity in	CLSM
charge	charge

Programmes containing this learning unit (UE)
Program title	Acronym	Credits	Prerequisite	Aims
Master [120] in Business Engineering	INGM2M	5		هر
Master [120] in Management	GEST2M	5		٩
Master [120] in Management	GESM2M	5		٩
Master [120] in Business Engineering	INGE2M	5		٩			