| Teaching methods            | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Groups of maximum 20 students.</li> <li>• Workload :30 teaching hours42 hours of autonomous work</li> <li>• Mainly practical speaking exercises based on reading files related to the professional world, the study field of current affairs.</li> <li>• Course material : the student receives part of the course material in the first class and the rest gradually during the year, as the TU is mainly based on current affairs (economy, science, society,'). A general, professional vocabulary list and another one more specific to each student's study field will be sent to the student by mail. On request, the student may ask for extra grammatical exercises and their corrections.</li> </ul> |
| Content                     | This teaching unit involves <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• the revision and extension of general vocabulary as well as specific (field-related) vocabulary,</li> <li>• the revision of specific Dutch structures by means of oral and written exercises. There will be no systematic teaching of grammatical theory,</li> <li>• the training and development of reading and listening skills.</li> </ul>  |
| Bibliography                | Dossier de lecture. Documents distribués lors des séances.   |
| Other infos                 | Acces to this teaching unit : before validating the student's programme, the limited jury should make sure, if the student has chosen to integrate this teaching unit, that the coordinator has confirmed his/her enrolment in one of the groups, this allowing for a good organization of groups within the Institut des Langues Vivantes.   |
