Content	This course will tackle the new challenges that have to meet marketers when designing their marketing strategy in the rapidly changing digital landscape. The new digital environment had a major impact on consumers' habits and needs. As a result, the way to understand, communicate and reach consumers has changed dramatically. Companies have now to be in contact with the consumer wherever he is, on whatever devices he uses and at any moment of the day. Traditional marketing is over and a series of new marketing concepts have to be understood to be effective in this new environment. Moreover, companies need to be able to manage, analyze and take actions on big data generated. This has an impact on the way companies have to manage and structure their marketing department. This is complex and requires new skills that companies do not always have. The course will help students to 1) Understand how marketing has to change in light of the new digital landscape, 2) Review how to develop a marketing strategy in this new landscape and 3) Learn how to design a marketing plan taking into account traditional and new digital tools.
Bibliography	One syllabus is available at the DUC including only key slides. If you want to know more about digital marketing, there is one good reference book (not compulsory for this course): Digital Marketing, Dave Chaffey and Fiona Ellis-Chadwick, Pearson, 2015.
