Teaching methods	Due to the COVID-19 crisis, the information in this section is particularly likely to change. Magistral course. Many sound, visual and textual examples are proposed.
Content	This teaching unit is divided into two parts. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The philosophical part approaches a history of the philosophy of music from the texts of philosophers, writers, theoreticians and musicians. The major concepts of aesthetics (ontology, time and space, language, reason-emotion, mimesis ...) will be defined during the presentation and then taken again in synthesis, so that the student can forge his own critical vocabulary.</li> <li>• The sociological part analyzes the major issues of the sociology of music in the 21st century, after some historical markings that describe the emergence of this discipline. Through the relationships between the creator, the performer and the audience, the issues of classical music such as popular music or jazz music will be tackled. Musical cultural practices specific to our Western society will be considered (music as a vector of social values). As part of this analysis, it will act to understand and analyze the contemporary sound and musical environment, through its multiple expressions: recordings, radio, TV, cinema, planned functional music (Muzak), advertising, multimedia, internet (download, podcast), etc. The focus will be on the relationship between music and the mass media.</li> </ul>
