Teaching methods	Due to the COVID-19 crisis, the information in this section is particularly likely to change. Each part of the course is introduced in a classical way. After that, the course is organized by interactions with the students through a selection of readings and personal research.
Content	2018-2019 Territory, communities and governance: canonical, legal and comparative approaches At a time when the governance of the churches raises many questions, the course proposes to study the institutional structures of the "local church" (or officially "particular church"), whose normal figure is the diocese (cc. 369). Structures and accountability. In a first approach, after recalling the theological and canonical status of the "local" or "particular" Church", the course will study the canonical provisions relating to the institutions that allow, in it and by it, the Church to be realized in one place. At the same time, the course will bring into dialogue these canonical aspects with the requirements related to the regime of cults in state law (particularly European law and Belgian law). The objective is to question a theological and canonical reinterpretation of the issues related to these legal requirements. Finally, a comparative approach with the regime of local communities of other cults will provide elements to complete the understanding of the specificity of each type of local governance and their self-understanding.
