Teacher(s)	Sibony Anne-Lise ;
Language :	French
Place of the course	Louvain-la-Neuve
Prerequisites	EU Law [LDROI1226].
Main themes	This course deals with how EU law protects consumers. Such protection comprises two main aspects. First, EU law aims to ensure consumer safety and lays down rules for both product safety and food safety. Second, EU law seeks to ensure fairness for consumers. To this effect, it regulates unfair terms in B2C contracts and prohibits unfair commercial practices. EU consumer law is specific in that it protects consumers while at the same time pursuing the internal market objective. This explains that both the EU legislator and the European Court of Justice make sure that consumer protection rules do not result in unacceptable barriers to trade. This course focuses on consumer protection and is complementary with other substantive EU law courses, in particular the courses on internal market [LDREU2206] and competition law [LDREU2208].
Learning outcomes	<ul> <li>At the end of this learning unit, the student is able to :</li> <li>After completing this course, students will have a basic command of EU consumer protection rules. They will possess the know-how to apply them to simple factual situations. At the end of the course, students will be able to identify whether or not European consumer law governs a given factual situation and, if it does, which rules apply, in conjunction with national law.</li> <li>This course also aims to provide opportunities to learn skills that are useful beyond the practice of European consumer law, in particular: 1) being able to identify legal rules applicable to a given factual situation and relevant in order to reach a practical aim; 2) being able to present in writing the legal analysis of a given factual situation clearly and correctly.</li> </ul>
Evaluation methods	<ul> <li>The exam is three hour long. Subject to sanitary conditions, it takes place in IT rooms (where computers are equipped with French keyboards). Should sanitary conditions prevent the use of IT rooms, altrenative arrangements will be made.</li> <li>The exam consists of short essay questions and a hypothetical case study. You will find past exam questions on Moodle.</li> <li>Assessment criteria for the essay questions are as follows: <ul> <li>ability to identify correctly the relevant legal rules (including the absence of irrelevant elements)</li> <li>ability to adequately explain applicable legal rules</li> <li>clear and adequate structure of written answer (link with the question, logical order of arguments, link between sentences and between paragraphs)</li> </ul> </li> <li>Assessment criteria for the problem questions are as follows: <ul> <li>ability to identify correctly a legal issue in a given factual situation,</li> <li>ability to identify correctly the relevant legal rules()</li> <li>ability to identify correctly the applicable rule(s)</li> <li>ability to adequately explain applicable rule(s)</li> <li>ability to identify correctly the applicable rule(s)</li> <li>ability to identify correctly the relevant legal rules, taking your fictitious interlocutor's needs into account</li> <li>ability to justify the choice of a legal rules with regard to practical aims</li> <li>exact knowledge of legal rules</li> <li>ability to select relevant knowledge in relation to a given question or problem</li> <li>logical reasoning,</li> <li>quality and sufficiency of reasons given to justify the analysis proposed or the point of view argued,</li> <li>correct use of legal vocabulary</li> </ul> </li> </ul>
Teaching methods	<ul> <li>adequate structure of written answer (link with the issues identified, logical order of arguments, link between sentences and between paragraphs)</li> <li>This course is partly lecture based and partly a seminar. As a rule, each meeting will consist of a lecture, a discussion on readings to be prepared before class or a problem/case study to be resolved before or during the class. Developing your problem-solving skills is not the sole goal of this course. It also aims to give you an opportunity to enhance your capacity to discuss the law critically. This is why you will be invited to reflect on the effectiveness and fairness of EU consumer law as it stands and on ways to improve the law.</li> </ul>

Schneider, More than You Warnet ok Know : the Failure of Mandated Disolosures, Princeton: Phinceton University Press, 2014		consumer law: consumer safety, protection against unfair practices and unfair contract terms and access to justice. Specific protections exist in certain sectors. It will not possible to study all of them in-depth but we will study a selection of issues which relate to consumer protection and liability for defective products; online consumer protection; consumer protection and credits; consumer protection and risk regulation; consumer protection and food safety; consumer protection and sustainable development. EU consumer law was recently subject to a fitness check: the Commission launched a large-scale study to determine if existing consumer directives were still fit for purpose. This work led to the adoption of the "Modernisation" Directive (Directive (EU) 2019/2161 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 27 November 2019 on better enforcement and modernisation of EU consumer protection rules). It is, therefore, a particularly good time to take stock of where EU consumer law stands and think critically about its future. Has the internal market aim been so influential in the development of EU consumer law that it has lost sight of the redistributive function of consumer protection? How realistic is it to suppose that giving information to consumer will guarantee informed decisions? Do the globalisation, digitalisation and service orientation of the economy call for a major reshuffle of consumer protection? Such are the questions which will provide the backbone of this course. 1. Introduction
