Evaluation methods	The final written examination will consist in commenting on a historical document - which requires both knowledge and a critical mind.
Content	Disobeying the sovereign (Low Countries, France, England, 16th century) Monarchical power kept asserting itself, and demanded an unconditional obedience from its subjects as soon as 1530. And yet, the latter hanged on to their values, to their faith, to their privileges. Renaissance, Reform and Modernity provided them with new weapons. Disobedience was a fact: we will try to analyze its various levels and nuances (insubordination / opposition / revolt / rebellion / resistance, and so on), but also to distinguish - in a resolutely comparative way - new claims from traditional recriminations among various social groups: peasants, towns, noblemen, soldiers, and even the "national" community.
Inline resources	Powerpoint projections related to the course sessions, as well as all analysed documents, will be made available through the Moodle platform on the course site.
