Learning outcomes	At the end of this learning unit, the student is able to : Since the departure of Jacques Delors as President of the Commission it is possible to discern a certain nostalgia for the years he was at the helm, both among Europeans generally, and active stakeholders. The main objective of this course is to provide an account of developments in the European 'project', and more precisely the ECSC up to 1994. The course adopts the perspective taken in the English-language literature in relation to this period (see recommended reading list), and underlines the way that the developments in question occurred at the same time as the academic perspectives about them were constructed. By so doing, the course seeks to avoid a hagiographic and/or deterministic interpretation of the last 60 years. Through a close analysis of the crises and fresh beginnings that characterised these decades, students from various disciplinary backgrounds will be better able to understand the complexity of European union institutions, and their place in the fabric of Europe.
