

This biannual learning unit is not being organized in 2023-2024 !

Teacher(s)	Nottebaert Anne ; Pouillon Henry ; Yuen Yeung Fun ;
Language :	French > English-friendly
Place of the course	Tournai
Main themes	This unit, taught by joint lecturers, explores the interactions between the arts and architecture. Architecture as art. A series of theoretical lectures will look at the mutual relationships between the arts and architecture: how do paradigms (convergences of thought, accepted and internalised rules) pass through communities of artists and architects in a given period? In parallel, students will test a contemporary artistic approach by asking questions and formulating a suggested response using the techniques and methods of action involved. This will make them reflect on architecture. The objective is to create a space of relative freedom to open up possibilities at the conceptual level. And to enable students to understand artistic practice to find the drivers for a meaningful design. The opportunities to link this issue to academic research particularly relate to the ability to deploy sensitivity (as a means of analysis and communication) to transmit meaning to the public arena. And, in this way, to look at architecture as an aesthetic act. Using a contemporary issue, to take part in conceptual experimentation and to reintegrate it within the discipline. Issues in Architecture: Contemporary Art and Architecture is made up of two parts, A and B. A : XPRMTL. Experimental Architecture How artists and architects work together through emerging ways of designing form which prefigure the ways of living in the future. How this enables their disciplines to revive? (B : "Grasping reality", "another way of looking". Analysis and observation of reality. Ways of working in art and architecture.)
Learning outcomes	At the end of this learning unit, the student is able to : The specific learning outcomes contribute to the learning outcomes reference network: Test an artistic approach <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To test and extend the limit of the imagination • To imagine drivers which can transform the perception of what is real More specifically, students intuitively perceive the world through their imagination, through what they have learned before arriving at Master's level. They will set out their mental images and question them. Make use of other subjects <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Seek out other approaches, exchanges of views and ways of enhancing thinking about architecture • Interpret and synthesise the knowledge of other subjects • Make strategic use of other subjects to put into question the design and implementation of an architectural project 1 <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Bring all this back to the original discipline More specifically, students will be able to <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • place and bring together artistic knowledge and practice. • identify periods in the history of classical, modern and contemporary art when the transfer between artistic disciplines has been particularly rich, How, at certain times, certain arts are ahead of others and how that develops (or is reversed). • understand current artistic issues and practices and strategically transform them into architectural design. • take or advance their knowledge of certain media such as drawing, graphic arts, video, digital imagery, dance, literature, music and certain artistic approaches (conceptual, documentary, expressionist etc.). From this experience, they will learn to make use of them in a conceptual process. • return to the discipline of architecture through introduction to research : the approach must be able to be communicated to an informed audience.

Express an architectural procedure

- Identify the founding elements of a hypothesis or a proposal to express and communicate them
- Test and use relevant means of communication in relation to the intended audience and the target objectives

More specifically, students will be able to

- deploy sensitivity (as a means of analysis and communication) to transmit meaning to the public arena.

Making committed choices

- Develop awareness of the political meaning of the work of an architect and his/her responsibility towards society
- Make links between different methodological and epistemological perspectives
- Imagine ambitious proposals which could call into question the choices made by society

In particular, students will be able to

- implement an approach, a process. They will find leads which could regenerate perception of reality without necessarily leading to creation, but rather to a storyboard or a model of the creation.
