| Evaluation methods | For the January exam session the students taking the course are assessed on the individual work that they submit. Students taking part in the August/September session will be an individual assignment. |
| Teaching methods | The students use the professional program EZTitles©. The LSTI subtitling assignments are first reviewed in a number of audiovisual files. Students will be working on specific subjects : medical, veterinary, culinary,... The issues of surtitling and subtitling for the hearing impaired will be discussed. For the second part of the course each student subtitles a video file individually and independently. |
| Content | The course is taught in the computer room with machines running EZTitles© software. The teaching is professional training. Students are trained to deliver a final product that would meet the quality requirements of the workplace. |
