MUSA9CE - Information

Learning outcomes

The Certificate in Musicology is designed provide students of any subject with training in musicology to introduce them to the world of music, culture and contemporary musical creation. The advanced training builds on and refines the tools and skills acquired from basic training.

The programme focuses both on the history of music and on more contemporary issues of musical language, sociology, analysis and aesthetics; it stresses the importance of openness and dialogue with today's musical world, while at the same time providing students with the rigour of a classic university level musical methodology.

This course is designed for adults who, in the context of lifelong learning, wish to develop their musical side: people already involved in professional life, whether musical or not, and who wish to have some university level training; students from music institutions (IMEP, the Royal Music Conservatoires, IAD, etc.) who, as practitioners of music, wish to have a more theoretical and/or more critical training programme.

Teaching method

The courses make use of a variety of teaching techniques and strategies (lectures, group work, individual work, seminars, reading etc.) which help students to acquire the necessary skills. Certain courses also use e-learning techniques (provision of resources and exercises, teaching devices, collective sharing and assessment of work).

Evaluation

According to the type of course, there are different forms of assessment. Certain courses have traditional oral and/or written assessments (which take place in the examination periods in January, June and August/September), while seminars involve student participation throughout the semester and the assessment of individual work. Further details on the assessment method are given at the beginning of each course.

Course examinations on communication skills are designed to test performance, that is to say practical use of the language in meaningful situations, which demonstrate students' level of ability.

Teaching activities are assessed in accordance with the rules currently in force at the University (see General Examination Regulations ). Students may also find additional information on the particular methods of assessment in the course descriptions.
