Introduction

Your Profile

- You are curious by nature and have excellent general knowledge.
- You can express yourself easily and well in French and have a lively mind.
- You can speak at least two foreign languages.
- You are a good communicator and wish to act as a relay point between people and cultures.
- You like to be at the heart of things, in contact with a wide range of subjects and continue to learn.

Your Future Job

Conference interpreters provide a spoken reproduction of speech made in another language. They work in two ways.

- Simultaneous interpretation: seated in a cabin, the interpreter relays the message while the speaker is speaking. He or she works into his or her native language. The audience in the room receives the message through headphones. This kind of interpretation is generally used in multilingual conferences.
- Consecutive interpretation: the interpreter relays the message to participants, after the speaker has spoken, using notes made according to a personal technique. This kind of interpretation is preferred in contexts where two or three working languages are being used. .

Interpreters work as officials in large international organisations or on a self-employed (or freelance) basis with a variety of clients.

Interpreters also have career opportunities in translation, proof-reading, publishing, journalism, diplomacy, multilingual communication within businesses, etc.

Your Programme

- A team of teachers made up almost exclusively of professional interpreters, creating a direct link between the teaching and the world of work.
- Individual supervision and work in small groups of students.
- Collaboration with the big international institutions (NATO, EU, Council of Europe etc..
- Final examination before a professional examining board made up of representatives from international organisations.
- Consecutive interpretation 'back' : from French into the foreign language.

  # Development of a profile of expertise allied with versatility, rigour and ability to work, all of which are much in demand in the job market.

Your study path

The programme is made up of :

- 75 credits for the core subjects (including 15 credits for the dissertation and 12 credits for the work placement).
- 30 credits for the professional focus in Conference Interpreting.
- 15 credits for optional courses.

Possible language combinations :

- English + German
- English + Dutch
- English + Spanish
- English + Russian
- English + Turkish
- English + Arabic *
- German + Dutch
- German + Russian
- Joint French <> Belgian Francophone sign language

* Courses with Arabic are held in Brussels

Aptitude test

An aptitude test is held after the first few weeks of the first year of the Master's degree to help students evaluate their ability in interpreting. If the result is disappointing, it is possible to switch to the Master's degree in translation.

Work placements

Organised throughout the course, the work placements enables students to practise 'off microphone' in international organisations such as NATO, the EU, the Council of Europe or the UN. Students on work placement also make an active contribution to events organised by NGOs or other associations who do not have the means to employ professional interpreters. These placements are supervised by teacher-interpreters; they are carefully selected and evaluated.

Final examination

Having been prepared for the competitive examinations of the big organisations, candidates take a final examination in front of a professional examining board made up of outside interpreters and representatives of international organisations.

Learning outcomes

At the end of their training, students in interpreting will be experts in a wide and solid range of knowledge, know-how and skills which they can employ in all aspects of interpreting and thereby communicate all the nuances of a message, formed by an orator in a foreign language, in their mother tongue, French.

Therefore, at the end of their training, students will have:

- developed expertise in their working languages in the practice of interpreting;

- mastered the different interpreting techniques (consecutive and simultaneous) and become able to employ them in communicating messages in a language different to the original while respecting the orator's intentions and register;

- assimilated a range of thematic (disciplinary) and cultural knowledge which they are capable of employing and completing independently in order to carry out their interpreting assignments;

- mastered all aspects of oral communication, and in particular facility, register and accuracy, to a high level of expertise;

- become able to implement a rigorous scientific and methodological approach to an interpretation problem and thereby improve their service;

- become capable of respectfully and constructively holding discussions and collaborating with speakers and their colleagues;

- consolidated their technical and ethical skills and knowledge through their first professional experiences.

Additionally, students will have developed significant abilities to be adaptive and flexible, which allow them to confront various professional situations. Students will demonstrate tact and self-control at all times and will follow the profession's ethical code. Students will integrate a continuous developmental logic which allows them to perform as professionals demonstrating high-level expertise and flexibility and develop positively within the context of their work. Course prerequisites

A document entitled (nb: not available for this programme intp2m) specifies the activities (course units - CU) with one or more pre-requisite(s) within the study programme, that is the CU whose learning outcomes must have been certified and for which the credits must have been granted by the jury before the student is authorised to sign up for that activity.

These activities are identified in the study programme: their title is followed by a yellow square.

As the prerequisites are a requirement of enrolment, there are none within a year of a course.

The prerequisites are defined for the CUs for different years and therefore influence the order in which the student can enrol in the programme's CUs.

In addition, when the panel validates a student's individual programme at the beginning of the year, it ensures the consistency of the individual programme:

- It can change a prerequisite into a corequisite within a single year (to allow studies to be continued with an adequate annual load);
- It can require the student to combine enrolment in two separate CUs it considers necessary for educational purposes.

For more information, please consult regulation of studies and exams.

The programme's courses and learning outcomes

For each UCL training programme, a reference framework of learning outcomes specifies the competences expected of every graduate on completion of the programme. You can see the contribution of each teaching unit to the programme's reference framework of learning outcomes in the document "In which teaching units are the competences and learning outcomes in the programme's reference framework developed and mastered by the student?"

Teaching method

Main points in the teaching approach

- Many learning techniques come from the future professional life of the graduate translator

The teaching methods employed on the programme for the Master's in Interpreting have been designed with the perspective of the graduate's future professional life firmly in mind : a balanced mix of theory and practice, active learning in a central position, with an important place reserved for the development of professional skills.

The choice of teaching methods puts an emphasis on learning activities which focus on the expectations and requirements of the profession, to the extent of putting the students in a professional situation, in particular:
- classes (in the last year of the Master's) given by professional interpreters whose starting point in their teaching is their daily practice ;
- class-seminars in small groups allowing real interaction with the lecturer;
- collaboration with large international institutions (EU, EUROCONTROL, NATO, Council of Europe etc.): visits to their interpreting departments and work placements in a dummy booth ;
- themed modules designed to help students and lecturers, given several times a year by professional interpreters from the European Commission ;
- simulations of multilingual conferences to replicate real working conditions ; open mike experience in a professional setting for various organisations at conferences, regular events etc. ; these sessions are carefully chosen to respect best professional practice and are supervised by lecturers.

In this way, many programme modules and activity enable students to gain knowledge and develop the necessary skills to work as an interpreter.

The dissertation provides students with the opportunity to develop and make use of a rigorous academic and methodological procedure which will make them into a university level interpreter, capable of building and enriching their professional practice through theoretical input and a reflective approach.

Students can benefit from up to date IT systems as well as classrooms with simultaneous interpretation booths which are also available outside class time enabling students to practice amongst themselves.

- A variety of teaching strategies and learning methods

There is a variety of teaching methods relating to the different skills to be developed: formal lectures, exercise sessions, individual assignments, seminars, simulations of professional situations and work placements.

This variety of situations helps students to build their knowledge and develop their skills on an iterative basis whilst also developing independence, a sense of organisation and timekeeping and communication skills in different forms.

Evaluation

The evaluation methods comply with the regulations concerning studies and exams (https://uclouvain.be/fr/decouvrir/ rgee.html). More detailed explanation of the modalities specific to each learning unit are available on their description sheets under the heading "Learning outcomes evaluation method".

The assessment methods are in line with the General academic and examination regulations (https://uclouvain.be/fr/decouvrir/ rgee.html) . Further details on each module are available from the description in the 'Assessment of learning outcomes' section.

To calculate the average, the marks gained for the modules are weighted according to their different credits.

The assessment methods vary according to the module and the nature of the learning outcomes: written or oral examinations, individual or group written reports (with or without an oral presentation). The following measures are also used:
- Aptitude test after a few weeks of class in the Master's 1 programme. This is designed to give students who have chosen the Master's in Interpreting an assessment of their ability to successfully complete the course. This is a compulsory aptitude test but is not a formal examination. Students who do not receive a positive assessment are able to switch to the Master's in Translation.
- For each of the work placements, assessment is based on three reports: one from the host organisation, one from the lecturer supervising the students and one from the student.
- During Master's 2 classes, organisation of mock exam boards designed to familiarise students with the exam, in front of a board made up of professionals. The aim is also to accustom students to the stress inherent in the profession as well as to prepare them for the competitive interpreting examinations of the big international organisations.
- An integrated assessment at the end of the Master's by a professional examination board made up of lecturers, professional interpreters from outside and representations of the interpreting departments of international organisations. This assessment is carried out by professionals according to the criteria for the frame of reference for learning outcomes (exit profile of the graduate) and the requirements of the professional environment (including CAT – Computer Assisted Translation), which ensures that the degree is recognised by the profession.

Mobility and/or Internationalisation outlook

Students of the Masters in Translation may carry out an Erasmus+ study period.
The exchange study period will take place during the first term in the second part of the master.

During the academic exchange , students should take 30 course credits in another university in Belgium or overseas and may receive a grant (Belgica, Erasmus+, Mercator) depending upon availability.
