SPOL2104 Comparative politics

[30h] 4 credits

This course is taught in the 2nd semester

Teacher(s): Lieven De Winter, André-Paul Frogner
Language: french
Level: 2nd cycle course

Aims

Students will acquire a good understanding of a comparative approach both in the epistemological sense (the kind of specific explanation it embraces) and in a purely methodological sense. They will also be able to design an empirical comparative analysis.

Additionally, they will be introduced to the principal comparative theories of political systems, including, in particular, a comparison of institutional structures, electoral systems and party systems.

Main themes

An introduction to the system of comparative political analysis on the basis of theoretical and methodological approaches. A demonstration of its essential importance to political science, in which comparison acts as a substitute for experimentation on the level of both analysis and institutional engineering.

A comparative analysis, in western societies particularly, of electoral and party systems, political parties as such, pressure groups, parliaments and governments.
