DROI2002 Questions of Religious Science - The Bible and its Message

[15h] 2 credits

This course is taught in the 1st semester

Teacher(s): Claude Lichtert (supplée André Wénin), André Wénin
Language: French
Level: Second cycle

Aims

This course, given to students who did follow a similar course in their first two years, deals with religious questions at a university level. It aims to offer to the Christian student a comprehension of his or her faith that is situated at the level of his or her secular knowledge, and to the non-Christian student an objective knowledge of the Christian faith. Thus, it is not a course about deontology or professional ethics, but a theology course which is adapted to the sensitivity of a group of (future) lawyers

Main themes

The lectures deal with doctrinal questions such as the existence of God, human destiny, the creation, Jesus and the question of evil. It is a lecture course

Content and teaching methods

This course, given to students registered for the degree in law who did not include such a course in their first degree programme, deals with religious questions at a university level. It aims to offer to the Christian student a comprehension of his or her faith that is situated at the level of his or her secular knowledge, and to the non-Christian student an objective knowledge of the Christian faith. Thus, it is not a course about deontology or professional ethics, but a theology course which is adapted to the sensitivity of a group of (future) lawyers.

Christian faith and especially its anthropology and conception of God is developed, starting from a narrative and existential study of some main texts from the Old Testament (the mythical narratives of Genesis, the Decalogue) which are approached from a Christian hermeneutical perspective. As far as the evaluation is concerned, the student has to choose between an oral examination and the oral presentation of a personal thesis inspired by the lectures.
