Aims

Introduction to the analysis of the cinematographic image.

Main themes

The theatre has left a permanent mark on the cinema: in areas such as frontality, text, actors, scenery and lighting. So, in a more subtle way, has music, in areas such as structure, rhythm, sound editing and sound mixing. The theme chosen for this course is the screen, the stage and music - relations between cinema fiction and theatrical and musical representation.

Content and teaching methods

Content: This course is designed as an introduction to the analysis of the cinematographic image, via its relation to music and theatre. Following an initial session involving a number of analyses of shots and sequences, the course looks at various art forms in which the various modes of representation concerned are brought together: musicals, melodramas, opera films, filmed ballets, animated films and even music videos. The following aspects will be particularly investigated: composition and camera movements, light, the organisation of space, acting, body movements, use of voices, cutting and editing, special effects during shooting or in post-production.

Method: Teacher-led course and student presentations. Presentation and projection of film extracts. Commentary on and analysis of sequences.
